This story begins back in simple times when a movie at the theater was the best entertainment possible and transportation was usually by bus, train, or bike. The depression made for hard times, and along came the war to end all wars. The story ends at a time when DVD's, CD's, and TV's were common place and popular transportation was RV's, jets, and limousines. It is about a woman and her desire to make a difference in her life, her family's life, and in the lives of those who touched hers. One of the apexes in her life was a span of time spent in Hawaii, though her heart belonged to the midwest. The story depicts many facets of her life. The biggest challenge faced by both Beginning and Experienced Wealth Builders is raising the money they need to start, buy, or expand their business activities. This guidebook shows these entrepreneurs how, and where, to get the money needed for their business moneymaking enterprises. Even if the Beginning Wealth Builder (BWB for short) or Experienced Wealth Builder (EWB), has poor credit, a history of bankruptcy, slow pays, or other financial troubles, this guidebook shows him/her how to get the loan, venture capital, public (or private) money, or grant they need. Since businesses vary widely in the amount of money needed, this book covers getting funding from just a few thousand dollars to multi-millions. Businesses covered range from the small mom-and-pop type activity to the successful firm having up to 500 employees. Either type of business can use the many hands-on directions given in this book. Public Relations Writing: Principles in Practice is a comprehensive core text that guides students from the most basic foundations of public relations writing-research, planning, ethics, organizational culture, law, and design-through the production of actual, effective public relations materials. For years I agonized over writing a book to address the many questions concerning Gods church today. The following are some of those questions and concerns: Are you being deceived from the pulpit? Does the church use offerings for Gods purpose? What is the pastors salary and compensation? Does your Pastor conform to or live like those in the world? Are detailed financial statements distributed to each member? Should you continue to give money to your church? Are you sure that your church is the place for you to worship God? After much prayer and study I felt the need to accept the challenge to address these questions in this book entitled, Gods Church, Gods Money, False Profits. It is with some trepidation that I approach these issues because, for some, the revelations may be uncomfortable to acknowledge or accept. And for others, they will find "truth" that will set them free (John 8:32). You've got the musicians together, you've written the songs, you've rehearsed, you've spent weeks in the studio, you can gig, and you have produced an album. So what's next? The business. If you don't deal with the business, you won't generate any income and you won't have a career. "Rocking Your Music Business" introduces the business of music and tells you what you need to do to set up and run your business. As part of this, the book also looks at how you can use your existing tools, such as a desktop computer, a laptop, or a Smartphone/iPhone, to carry your office in your pocket. Musicians make their money from many sources-CD/DVD and digital music sales, live performances and personal appearances, licensing for film and television, and merchandise. You need to get a grip on all of these sources of income to ensure that you receive the money you have earned. Beyond that, you need to keep the rights that are yours (so you can keep generating income). But the music business is more than just money; it's about people too, including fellow musicians, booking agents, managers, and studio owners. When dealing with any other person, you need to have a clear understanding of the expectations of each party. For instance, does a session musician have any songwriting rights? Without getting issues like this agreed to upfront and in writing, you may be leaving yourself open to years of litigation and needlessly giving away money. You don't need a major record label to have a career, especially with all the changes that the industry has been undergoing in the last few years, but you do need a successful business to make sure you earn a living making music. That successful career begins with "Rocking Your Music Business," the book that needs to be on every musician's bookshelf. Can a book actually help you close more sales? Yes it can! Sales Success is the book that shapes sales careers. With this sales fable, listeners will learn sales strategies used and recommended by members of the sales Hall of Fame, including Zig Ziglar, Tom Hopkins, and Scott McKain. Come along with master storyteller Mark Bowser as he takes you on a journey of discovering ultimate sales success. In Sales Success, you will meet Digger Jones, the mentor we all wished we had. Follow along as Digger teaches, motivates, and inspires his young protégé from failure to the heights of sales achievement ... and how you can apply these lessons to your own sales journey. This workbook will help you decide whether becoming a professional speaker is just another one of those fantasies that you had just like when you were a child or if you really do want to be a professional speaker. It will guide you step by step to turn that fantasy into a goal into a profession. A professional speaker is a sales person, you are selling yourself to the audience every time you get up to speak. So when someone tells me they don't like to sell themselves or they are not a salesperson they need to rethink whether or not they want to be a professional speaker. The only way you are going to get booked to speak is whether you are willing or not to sell yourself. Just like the average sales person who is on commission a speaker is on %100 percent commission. Whether you are paid to speak or selling your book or CD's in the back of the house you are a salesperson on commission. Your success as a speaker is based more on your sales ability than your speaking skills. Your speaking skills will help you get referrals from your audience members who saw your presentation and want you to speak to their organization but you still have to sell yourself. To be a professional speaker you have to think of yourself as a small business owner. Your speaking is the service you provide to the customer and your books, CD's, DVD's are the products you sell.
