Draft Marine Bill Nov 14 2019 The Marine Bill was designed to establish a new UK-wide strategic system of marine planning to balance conservation, energy and resource needs, based on the principle of sustainable development and working with the devolved administrations. The Committee reports here reservations about the framework nature of the draft Bill. It was felt that too much of its policy is contained in secondary legislation or guidance. That there are significant areas of confusion of responsibility - between UK and international, especially EU, obligations; between devolved administrations; the many agencies and other bodies who will be involved in delivering the proposals in the Bill.

Dalhuisen on International Commercial, Financial and Trade Law Aug 24 2020 This book deals with a number of important issues in the formulation of modern international commercial and financial law and is intended as a guide for practitioners dealing with international cases in national courts or in international commercial arbitrations and for students having an interest in the study of this law at graduate level. The first chapter deals with the sources of modern international commercial and financial law in a comparative context and with modern efforts to create uniform or harmonised law at international level (in the EU, Uncitral and Unidroit). The second chapter deals with contract in Common and Civil Law and the third chapter is concerned with payments and the operation of modern payment systems. The fourth chapter deals with movable tangible and intangible assets in Common and Civil Law and with the concept of ownership and possession. The fifth chapter covers the most important modern financial instruments like finance leases, repos, receivable financings and securitisations. The sixth chapter deals with the regulation of cross border financial services and investment banking practices. The seventh chapter covers international jurisdiction, the type and reach of provisional measures, the recognition of foreign judgments and bankruptcy decrees, and international arbitration. The book distinguishes itself from others in the field in that it is analytical rather than merely descriptive and attempts to give a perspective on how the most important legal structures and supervisory methods operate in the dynamics of a globalised and fast changing market place. It uses the laws in the US, Germany, France and England as starting points but seeks to develop a common approach that better reflects internationally developing commercial and financial practices.

Beyond Communal and Individual Ownership Oct 06 2021 Over the last decade, Australian governments have introduced a series of land reforms in communities on Indigenous land. This book is the first in-depth study of these significant and far reaching reforms. It explains how the reforms came about, what they do and their consequences for Indigenous landowners and community residents. It also revisits the rationale for their introduction and discusses the significant gap between public debate about the reforms and their actual impact. Drawing on international research, the book describes how it is necessary to move beyond the concepts of communal and individual ownership in order to understand the true significance of the reforms. The book's fresh perspective on land reform and careful assessment of key land reform theories will be of interest to scholars of indigenous land rights, land law, indigenous studies and aboriginal culture not only in Australia but also in any other country with an interest in indigenous land rights.

Indigenous Futures Aug 04 2021 In the recent public debate about the success or failure of Australia's Indigenous policies, opinions have been grounded more often in personal experience than in social scientists' research. By synthesizing ten years work from the Centre for Aboriginal Economic Policy Research, the author fills the gap in public discussion.

The Making of a New Rural Order in South China: Volume 1 May 13 2022 Among the large caches of private documents discovered and collected in China, few rival the Huizhou sources for the insight they provide into Chinese local society and economy over the past millennium. Having spent decades researching these exceptionally rich sources, Joseph P. McDermott presents in two volumes his findings about the major social and economic changes in this important prefecture of south China from around 900 to 1700. In this first volume, we learn about village settlement, competition among village religious institutions, premodern agricultural production, the management of land and lineage, the rise of the lineage as the dominant institution, and its members' application of commercial practices to local forestry operations. This landmark study of religious life and economic activity, of lineage and land, and of rural residents and urban commercial practices provides a compelling new framework for understanding a distinctive path of economic and social development for premodern China and beyond.

Teaching ‘Proper’ Drinking? Jan 17 2020 In Teaching ‘Proper’ Drinking?, the author brings together three fields of scholarship: socio-historical studies of alcohol, Australian Indigenous policy history and social enterprise studies. The case studies in the book offer the first detailed surveys of efforts to teach responsible drinking practices to Aboriginal people by installing canteens in remote communities, and of the purchase of public hotels by Indigenous groups in attempts both to control sales of alcohol and to create social enterprises by redistributing profits for the community good. Ethnographies of the hotels are examined through the analytical lens of the Swedish ‘Gothenburg’ system of municipal hotel ownership. The research reveals that the community governance of such social enterprises is not purely a matter of good administration or compliance with the relevant liquor legislation. Their administration is imbued with the additional challenges posed by political contestation, both within and beyond the communities concerned. ‘The idea that community or government ownership and management of a hotel or other drinking place would be a good way to control drinking and limit harm has been commonplace in many Anglophone and Nordic countries, but has been less recognised in Australia. Maggie Brady’s book brings together the hidden history of such ideas and initiatives in Australia ... In an original and wide-ranging set of case studies, Brady shows that success in reducing harm has varied between communities, largely depending on whether motivations to raise revenue or to reduce harm are in control.’ — Professor Robin Room, Director, Centre for Alcohol Policy Research, La Trobe University
